

A BLAST FROM SHERMAN.

There is not much to be gained by any Democrat in stirring up John Sherman. In the Senate on Thursday, Kenna attacked Sherman's position with reference to tariff and revenue, accusing the Ohio man of inconsistency, and quoting from speeches made by Sherman twenty and thirty years ago which expressed views to some extent opposite to those now entertained by Sherman. The latter replied in a very vigorous speech in which he declared that great changes had taken place in the country since the war, and he would be unfit to occupy a seat in the Senate if his views had not changed to suit the altered condition of the country. Then he attacked the Democratic party, and, shaking his fist at the Democratic Senators, he taunted them with the party's cowardice in refusing to accept the responsibility of power by making a square contest on the tariff question. He wanted that issue to be made for the coming Presidential election, and declared that the Republicans would stand squarely on the principle of protection to American labor.

This tilt in the Senate is somewhat significant. Sherman's taunt was well placed. The Democratic party certainly occupies a cowardly position relative to the tariff. It believes in free trade, but is afraid to come out boldly in favor of that doctrine, for fear that votes may be lost by such a course. Cleveland, however, has forced the issue on the party. It must nominate him, and, at the same time, his nomination will precipitate that contest on the tariff issue that the party managers have most reason to fear. The Democratic party may be compared to a big ox going reluctantly to the shambles, goaded along by the butcher Cleveland. It seems the danger of the situation, but is powerless to escape.

POLACK RIOTS.

The riots in Shenandoah, Pennsylvania, offer more evidence, if more were needed, of the class of persons that the greed of corporations and the indiscriminate immigration laws have introduced into the country. The rioters were Poles. They had been brought to this country and put to work in the coal mines because American laborers wanted good wages. The Hungarians, Italians and Russians have been brought here for the same purpose. They have, for the most part, driven American labor out of the mines, or reduced it into a degrading competition. The Post says:

These men, whatever may be their virtues, are ignorant, turbulent people. The accounts of their attempts to murder the non-union men and the police read more like that of a barbaric emute than like an occurrence in law-abiding America. The numerous outbreaks of the same kind in the past few years indicate that we are allowing the introduction of races as hostile to the American spirit and form of Government as the Chinese. The greed of corporations has brought them here by the easy evasion of the Contract Labor law, and it will continue to introduce them as long as Congress allows it. The strikes, riots and destruction of property that they bring evidently cost the corporations less than the payment of honest wages. The workingmen should move in the matter and urge Congress to pass a law that will exclude this kind of immigration.
